Why are we offering this free bonus coaching?

Over the last 25 years, we've helped thousands of souls all over the world, from all walks of life, with their personal growth, spiritual awakening and business success. What we've noticed is that while most people say they want to change - only some of them actually do.

Imagine a group of 100 people - who want the same things and are in a similar situation - all join a course at the same time. They have same knowledge and opportunity. What do you think will happen?

Some of them will learn, apply and create truly remarkable changes in their lives. This group will go on to achieve wealth, happiness, freedom and joy! They will also become wonderful inspirations to others. And as time goes on, they will grow and evolve, and become totally different people from when they started. Seeing these changes is why we love the work we do. It's inspiring and we're happy to see many of our students in this group.

But unfortunately, there are others who won't achieve success. They have access to the exact same knowledge and opportunity as the successful group, but somehow, nothing much actually changes. As the years go by, they may study a lot - they may even take more and more courses - but fundamentally, they have not really got anywhere.

Why not? What is the difference between those who achieve success and those who don't?

What do the successful do differently?

What are the unsuccessful doing to block themselves?

What is really going on?

And most importantly - how can you, personally, stay in the successful group?

After spending a lot of time observing people and figuring out what's going on, we've finally discovered there are 5 Core Qualities that all successful spiritual people have (that unsuccessful people lacked). What this means, is anyone who is on a spiritual path - and wants to be successful in their life and work - can vastly increase their success by learning and applying these 5 core success qualities. And even if someone does not begin their journey with these qualities, all 5 qualities can be learned and developed. Here they are...

The 5 Core Qualities For Success

Those who create success...	Those who create failure...
1. DEVELOP A GROWTH MINDSET Those who create success believe change is possible and practice makes perfect. They believe that their intelligence, creativity, health and even their personality can be changed through effort. Because of this belief - they are happy to try new things, experiment, fail, learn and improve. They are willing to make mis-takes. They realize that though gradual and ongoing improvements they can get better and better at just about anything. And they don't take their 'failures' personally. This mindset opens them up to countless new opportunities and new skills. They don't believe in talent - they realize that all high level people have put in the work and they can too.	1. ARE TRAPPED IN A FIXED MINDSET Those who become unsuccessful are afraid of trying new things due to fear of failure. They think that some people are just 'naturally talented' and that if they are not good at something right away, then they must not be a 'natural' so they may as well give up. They are unable (or unwilling) to take action or practice new things because if they fail, they take it to mean they personally are a failure. Everything they do is a judgement of their own personal self worth, so they can't tolerate making mis-takes. The fixed mindset traps them at their current level. It blocks them from taking on new challenges and destroys their capacity for lasting success. To break free they need to develop the growth mindset.
2. WILLING TO DO THE INNER AND OUTER WORK EVEN IF IT'S HARD Those who create success realize that 'knowledge is power' only when it's applied. They have a deep desire to learn - and then - act, try, apply and improve. They are willing to put in the effort to make real changes - even if it's a little hard at first (as the brain adjusts to change). They are not satisfied with just knowing about something - they want to experience it. They are ok with feeling uncomfortable as they grow and know that getting out of their comfort zone is a key part of success.	2. UNWILLING TO DO THE WORK (STUCK IN THEIR HEAD) Those who become unsuccessful are often stuck in their heads. They may have a lot of information in there but they are afraid of trying new things. They feel that because they 'know it all' they are not willing to put in the time and energy needed to get success. They always want more information but rarely use it. They compensate for lack of success with more information, distraction or busying themselves in things that don't matter. To break free they need to start practicing and move through the discomfort of not being 'perfect'. Once they are more comfortable with 'mis-takes' and being 'uncomfortable' their whole life can get better.
3. CREATE & SHARE STORIES Successful teachers, leaders, and coaches share stories of their success and challenges. They are willing to be vulnerable and open. Through practicing the art of story telling their inspiring stories impact people's lives. They don't just share random stories - they have a formula for quality inspiring stories. They love good stories and they are on the look out for inspiring stories. They are their own hero in their hero's journey, willing to live an inspiring life, and their life is an inspiration to others. Successful people also tell themselves inspiring stories about their process. They remind selves of where they are at on their hero's journey, they don't take setbacks too seriously, they know that in the end, they will succeed. Their inner dialogue is uplifting and inspiring and helps them keep moving forward when things get hard.	3. VENT, COMPLAIN, RAMBLE AND BLAME Those who create failure don't understand the art of story telling. They may be 'talking story' all the time - rambling on and on about their problems and dreams but their stories are tiring and distressing to those who listen. They don't have many inspiring stories to share because they don't fully engage with life. And if they do, they are unwilling to be honest and vulnerable and learn the compassionate art of sharing inspirational stories for the benefit of others. They are closed off and selfish. They also tell themselves faulty stories about themselves and the world. The blame their failure on others or tell themselves it doesn't matter if they don't try things. Their internal dialogue is harmful and distorted. To break through, they need to learn the art of story telling and tell stories that help others. They also need to tell themselves healthy stories that allow them to take action.

4. PUBLISH / SHARE THEIR WORK (SERVE) Those who create success are not only willing to create content and stories - but they also actually publish it! This means they find the best method to reach their audience and share it (it could be on social media, in emails, videos, live calls or however.) They not only have good ideas, but they also have the practice and habit of creating and 'shipping' so other people actually receive it. They also realize that only through publishing and sharing can they get the essential feedback they need to improve their work. They realize that creating is an open loop and ongoing relationship between themselves and their audience and without feedback they won't improve. They welcome feedback and want their work to really help people.	4. DON'T SHARE - KEEP THEIR IDEAS TO THEMSELVES Those who are unable to achieve success may have some great ideas and even some good stories - but they don't have the practice of sharing and publishing. They may create, but they don't send it out the door to help anyone else. They don't press the 'Publish' button. They are paralyzed by fear and perfectionism. They often have countless unfinished projects (or no projects) but no-one knows what they have done because it hasn't reached anyone. To break free they need to publish and share with others - and then learn from feedback. Practice makes perfect.
5. GET SUPPORT AND ACCOUNTABILITY TO GROW Those who create success are ready, willing and able to receive support because they know they will create much more success when they have help and others to support them and hold them accountable. They don't mind admitting they need help. They know that by surrounding themselves with inspiring, smart and well wishing people, they will be pulled up. They don't mind being told where they need to change. They benefit from the support of others and don't take it personally if they learn about their blindspots. They are happy to be held accountable to their own intentions and success.	5. DON'T RECEIVE SUPPORT OR ACCOUNTABILITY TO GROW Due to the fixed mindset, those who create failure in their lives are unwilling to do the work and so they don't want a coach or mentor. Instead, of support to make change, they only want validation about how great they are already. They don't want to try new things and fail or be held accountable to their own success. If they are offered valuable feedback to support them, they justify their position and sulk - unable to change or grow. They surround themselves with people less success from them to feel better about themselves. To break free they need to get out of their ego, develop the growth mindset and be willing to do the slow work of making ongoing improvements.

After discovering these fascinating insights, we want to help you develop the 5 Core Qualities for Success. And that's why we created the Hero's Journey Success Story Coaching so you can super charge your success, and enjoy the process of transformation now.

Once you learn these things - and take them to heart - miracles will begin to happen in your life. Real miracles.

Real Life Example

Two people are feeling stressed and their minds are out of control.

They both learn about the power of "the magic mantra" (which is a special practice of giving blessings and good vibrations to others) to get their mind under control and shift their state of being.

The first person, Anna, takes the practice to heart and sincerely practices the mantra every day. It's hard at first. She forgets to do it. Her mind has countless other thoughts and she is gets a little frustrated. But she keeps doing it anyway - knowing that practice will make perfect in the end. Within a few days, she starts to feel radically more calm and at peace. She is amazed - and realizes that this magic mantra is a great secret for her whole life, and she can use this in countless ways. She has gained a true treasure. She then goes on to tell others about it - and helps her friends and family feel more happy and relaxed. Her life and her tribe are blessed. It wasn't always easy, bu her life is so much better because she took the practice to heart.

The other person, who we'll call Sophie, learns the exact same magic mantra at the same time. However, she either tries it half heartedly for a few minutes and concludes it doesn't work and complains about it. Or, she says she's heard it all before, it's too simple - and wants to learn about something else. She dismisses the practice out of hand. She then looks for another 'magic bullet' and then refuses to practice that either. What the result? She is stuck in a rut personally, her life has not improved, and no-one else in her tribe has the opportunity to learn or grow either. Instead, they sit around complaining and blaming about how nothing seems to work.

The same opportunity. Radically different outcome.

Good News!

You can experience magical transformation starting now

The good news is when someone develops the growth mindset and is willing to try things out, miracles can happen.

I've seen people go from depressed to alive and inspired.

From blocked creativity to sharing and shining.

From feeling overwhelmed and confused to feeling clear and inspired by their lives.

From broke to wealthy and a financial adult - with the means to travel and enjoy life.

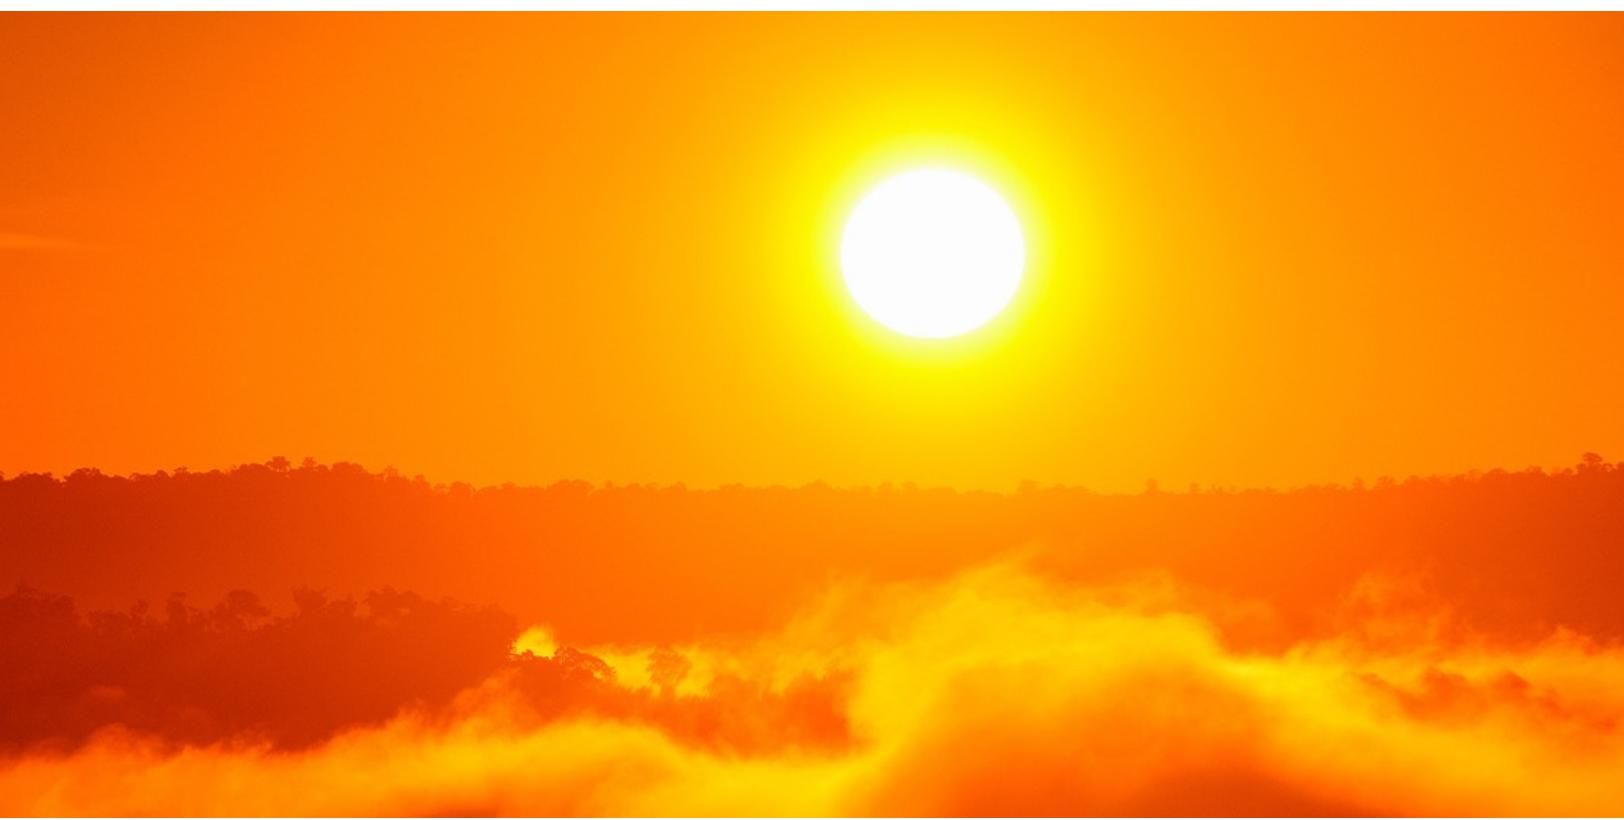

From having ideas about writing books - to being a published author.

From living in clutter and chaos to creating a divine sanctuary.

Each time someone is open to change - and willing to try things out long enough - miracles and wonders unfold!

So who do you want to be? What story do you want to create?

If you'd like to develop all 5 Qualities of Successful Souls (and overcome the 5 defects of unsuccessful souls) then you are invited to apply for Success Story Coaching!

What is Success Story Coaching?

Success Story Coaching is ongoing coaching with our Awakened Coaches to support you in taking action, applying what you learn - and sharing your success stories to inspire others.

In other words, it's about you going through your hero's journey and becoming a success story.

“A hero ventures forth from the world of common day into a region of supernatural wonder: fabulous forces are there encountered and a decisive victory is won: the hero comes back from this mysterious adventure with the power to bestow boons on his fellow man.” - Joseph Campbell. The Hero with a Thousand Faces

The purpose of the coaching is to help you bring your ideas to life. You begin with an intention. You then go on an adventure to transform yourself and your life. This will require inner and outer changes. And as you gain success (small and big) you can share your success with others to inspire them too. Your own transformation and experience becomes a gift for others.

And as you continue share your success stories - which can be mostly mini-success stories - you will feel inspired, and inspire others to keep moving ahead.

Sharing your stories, also helps you to attract clients because, as you'll learn, in today's world, your story IS your credentials. And the more you share powerful transformative stories with your future clients, the more people want to work with you and listen to you.
